With over 100 years in service, John Browning's semi-automatic pistol design is arguably the most popular handgun among military, law enforcement, and civilian circles. There's a good reason why the 1911 is the world's best-known military weapon; Even today, some elite combat units in the United States still choose to wear the venerable 1911 by their side. Its simple design made the firearm easy to use and maintain, making it a very sturdy and reliable weapon. The weapon's success prompted many gunmakers to borrow the design and conception from the 1911; To this day, the 1911 is still widely used as a benchmark when comparing handguns.

The Armorer Works "MOLON LABE" 1911A1 pays homage to the handgun. The replica gun features a beautiful weathering finish to resemble the battle-damaged look of a weapon that would have seen many battles. The classic phrase ?????? ????? (mol?n labé) and the bold engravings show that surrender is not an option and taking this weapon will be very expensive.
