Breathable comfort designed for action

During a long shooting session or intensive outdoor activity, you'll immediately appreciate the lightweight feel of these tactical gloves. The stretch fabric on the back of the hand and fingers improves ventilation while naturally conforming to the shape of each user's hand. In practice, this design reduces pressure points and promotes lasting comfort, even during extended use.

Mobility and precision of movements

The presence of elastane in strategic areas provides excellent flexibility. Each finger retains independent mobility, a real advantage during precise manipulations: changing magazines, using tactical accessories, or making fine adjustments at the shooting range. The elastic articulation at the knuckles further enhances fluidity of movement without compromising protection.

Textured palm for optimal grip

The palm combines a robust polyester base with a specific corso-type texture offering excellent grip. This finish improves handling of replicas, weapons, tools, or tactical accessories. In other words, control remains precise even during rapid maneuvers or in more dynamic conditions.
