A compact 250ml stainless steel flask

The Jack Pyke 250ml stainless steel flask in green adopts the classic pocket flask format in a stainless steel construction. Its 8 oz (250 ml) capacity allows you to carry a drink in a compact container during an outdoor excursion.

Its curved profile directly contributes to its practicality. The shape fits more naturally into a pocket than a classic cylindrical container, a valuable detail when you want to limit the bulk of your equipment.

Screw cap for secure transport

The closure uses a secure screw cap , designed to prevent leaks during transport. A simple but essential feature for a flask intended to be carried in a pocket or with other outdoor gear.

A green finish in the country style

The green finish naturally places this flask within the country and outdoor world associated with Jack Pyke . It's perfect for a day outdoors, a walk in the countryside, or a fishing trip.

Its size also makes it a great gift idea for an outdoor enthusiast: a traditional, compact and easy-to-carry accessory.

FAQ

How much can this pocket flask hold?

Its capacity is 8 oz, or 250 ml. This volume maintains a compact enough size for use as a pocket flask during outdoor activities.

Why choose a curved-shaped flask?

The curved shape makes it easy to carry against the body and is particularly suitable for storing in a pocket. It allows you to keep 250 ml of drink in a relatively compact container.
